

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

If anything the law should be increased. It is a severe intrusion of my privacy when a solicitor calls my home. It was so frustrating that I would leave my phone off the hook, resulting in missed phone calls from family and friends. Since signing up for the no call list, I receive markedly fewer calls from solicitors which has reduced the aggravation level. It is MY choice who should have my phone number and whom I want to do business with. I will make those choices on my own and without the aid of solicitors. All I do now is hang up on them, but if the intrusion increases, I will be one very angry homeowner. This is my private dwelling, and I would not appreciate being contacted by businesses that I have ceased doing business with. Sincerely,
Joan Pszonka
